

The Society of Biblical Literature (SBL) supports the critical investigation of the Bible by providing print and online resources for students, educators, and all who are interested in biblical literature. Founded in 1880, SBL is one of the oldest learned societies in the world. Nearly 9,000 individual members and institutions from every continent provide a forum to test ideas, learn from others, and advance the understanding of the Bible's role in the public arena.

ADVERTISING IN SBL PUBLICATIONS: TERMS AND POLICIES

1. Failure to provide artwork by the deadline may result in cancellation of space. In such cases, SBL reserves the right to assess a cancellation fee.
2. It is the advertiser's responsibility to send explicit instructions regarding layout, particularly for multiple pages.
3. Space constraints do not allow us to guarantee two-page spreads. Two-page ads should be designed to stand alone if necessary.
4. No agency discount is offered.
5. Advertising materials become the sole property of SBL. Artwork will not be returned.
6. SBL retains the right to reject advertisements that are deemed inappropriate. All advertising accepted for publication must be for products or services that support the research, publishing, or teaching activities of persons engaged in the study of religion, biblical studies, Judaica, archaeology, or the classics. Acceptance of advertising for the sale of antiquities is explicitly prohibited.
7. All advertisers are sent a tearsheet of their advertisement, along with an invoice. All invoices are due 30 days from receipt. All payments must be in U.S. dollars drawn on a U.S. bank.
8. Outstanding invoices may jeopardize an advertiser's ability to reserve space in future issues of any SBL publication. In the event of nonpayment, SBL reserves the right to hold the advertiser and its advertising agency jointly liable for costs due.
9. Discounts for multi-issue contracts apply to insertions in consecutive issues. These contracts may begin at any time during a calendar year. To receive the discount, advertisers must contract for multiple issues in advance—discounts will not be applied retroactively.
